

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

George Andreou

George Andreou is Assistant Professor at the School of Political Sciences, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki in the field of “European Union Policies”. He has also taught at the University of Athens, the University of Crete, the University of the Peloponnese and the National School of Public Administration, Greece. His research interests include public policy analysis, the policies of the European Union and cohesion policy (regional/structural policy) in particular, the Europeanisation of public policies in the EU and the relations between Greece and the EU. He has published New institutionalism in political science (Kritiki, Athens 2018), The New Cohesion Policy of the EU and Greece with P. Liargovas (Papazisis, Athens 2007) and various articles in Greek and international academic journals; he has also contributed to several collective volumes (in Greek and English). He edited the special issue of the Greek Political Science Review, Institutions, Public policies and Reforms in Greece (vol. 40, July 2013) and co-edited the book Cohesion Policy and Multi-level Governance in South East Europe (Routledge, Oxon 2011).

Sophie Borkel

Sophie Borkel is a junior project manager for European projects at Das Progressive Zentrum. Previously, she worked as a policy officer for the Committee on European Affairs and Development of the Brandenburg State Parliament. She holds a Bachelor’s degree in Politics & Law from the University of Münster and subsequently passed the first bar exam (Erstes Staatsexamen) with a focus on International and European law. During her legal clerkship, she focused on International Law and Human Rights Law and worked, among other things, for the Permanent Representations of the Federal Republic of Germany to the Council of Europe and the Organisation for Security and Cooperation in Europe before passing the second bar exam (Zweites Staatsexamen).

Federico Castiglioni

Federico Castiglioni (PhD) is a researcher working in the programme EU, politics and institutions at the Istituto Affari Internazionali (IAI). Prior to this job, he worked at the EU Parliament and for a Defence consultancy company based in Italy. In both these tenures, he followed issues related to the EU Common Foreign and Security Policy and the development of the European Defence Fund. Besides his work at the IAI, he teaches European institutions and governance at the Universities “L’Orientale” of Naples and “Link Campus” of Rome. He has been president of the European Affairs Committee of the Italian Youth Council.

Carme Colomina

Carme Colomina is a Research Fellow on European Union, disinformation and global politics at CIDOB (Barcelona Centre for International Affairs), Editor and member of the Editorial Board. She is also visiting professor at the College of Europe in Bruges, Belgium, where she teaches a course on Communications Management in the European Union, and at the Universitat Pompeu Fabra. Graduated in Information Science from the Universitat Autònoma of Barcelona and with a post-graduate course in European Union Studies from the UOC, she has been Brussels' correspondent and head of international affairs in Catalunya Ràdio and in ARA newspaper. As a special envoy, she covered dozens of international summits and political conflicts and she is still a frequent contributor to various media organizations as an analyst of European current affairs. Before joining CIDOB, she also worked as a consultant on various communication projects in the European and Euro-Mediterranean sphere, and was Head of Interregional Cooperation in the Foreign Affairs department of the Catalan government.

Krzysztof Głowacki

Before joining WiseEuropa, Krzysztof did analytical work at the Center for Social and Economic Research. He has also collected experience in the private sector (working as a financial analyst in a large company and a project leader in a small one) and in the public sector (completing internships at the City Hall of Kraków and at the Embassy of Poland in the Hague). Krzysztof studied humanities and economics at Tilburg University, University of Antwerp, and Bocconi University, and he is currently a PhD researcher at the University of Warsaw's Doctoral School of Humanities.

Adriano Rodari

Adriano Rodari is a Fellow at APROPOS, working on process design in politics for the Open European Dialogue (OED). Before joining the OED, he held other positions at the German Marshall Fund of the United States, the Italian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Foresight Intelligence. He obtained a master's degree in Interdisciplinary Research and Studies on Eastern Europe at the University of Bologna and contributes to the weekly newsletter Lossi 36, covering the political situation in Eastern Europe.

Héctor Sánchez Margalef

Héctor Sánchez Margalef is a Researcher at CIDOB (Barcelona Centre for International Affairs). He holds a BA in Political Science and a MA in International Relations, Security and Development by Autonomous University of Barcelona in 2012 and is PhD candidate at the University of Barcelona. Before joining CIDOB he worked as an intern in the Research Institute for Managing Sustainability (Vienna) and the European Institute of the Mediterranean (Barcelona). In 2013 he joined CIDOB as a research assistant of the Greater Mediterranean area. Later he joined CIDOB's expert team as researcher in his areas of study: European politics and integration dynamics, new political movements and democracy and participation. He has worked in private and public funded projects such as the Mercator European Dialogue and Open European Dialogue, FACTS, EU Idea and The Raval Project. He speaks Catalan, Spanish, English and French.